Mr. & Mrs. John and Gayle Crawford (center) with CHASF Alumni during Annual Founder's Breakfast.

Christopher Davis has fond memories of his mentor and friend, John T. Crawford, founder of the Charlotte Housing Authority Scholarship Fund (CHASF). The 27-year old couldn't think of a better way to honor him than by helping to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the fund during the recent Annual Founder's Breakfast. Davis, a banker and burgeoning sports agent, tearfully shared his story to a packed ballroom at the Friendship Missionary Baptist Church of how Crawford influenced his life and helped him to earn a college education.

Davis was followed by Retired Bank of America CEO Hugh McColl, a long-time friend of Crawford and the keynote speaker. McColl talked about the impact education and the military had on the direction of his education and the military had on the direction of his life. He emphasized that the scholarship fund was critical to ensuring the future success of its recipients and the eventual benefits to the community from the educational investment in these young people. To thank him for his involvement with the fund, CHASF Alumni AB Blake presented McColl with an American flag flown in Iraq.

One of the many highlights of the celebration was a $30,000 check presentation by Duke Energy's Richard "Stick" Williams as part of their matching gift challenge that raised over $100,000. Duke Energy and their employees are also long-time supporters and volunteers.

Several surprises caught Founder John Crawford off guard. The Mayor's office proclaimed October 17 as Dr. John T. Crawford Charlotte Housing Authority Scholarship Fund Annual Founder's Day in Charlotte. And, the CHASF Alumni Association brought tears to his eyes when they recognized him for starting the fund. Crawford received an engraved Callaway golf-bag and a GPS range-finder so that when he's not out sharing the CHASF story, he can enjoy his other favorite past-time: golf!

Crawford is looking forward to the next 30 years and is on a mission to double the number of annual recipients and the endowment. The fund has grown to $4.1 million.

Duke Energy's "Stick" Williams presents Dr. Crawford a $30,000 donation to the fund.

CHASF Spotlight: The Culbertsons

Bob Culbertson and his wife, Peggy, are long-time supporters of the Charlotte Housing Authority Scholarship Fund and enjoy giving back to the community by supporting education. 30 years ago, Bob Culbertson read a newspaper article about Founder John T. Crawford raising money for Charlotte area children living in public housing to attend college. He jumped at the chance to help Crawford in his endeavors and picked up the phone to call him, offering advice on what his next steps should be. Culbertson encouraged Crawford to call Foundation For The Carolinas and tell them his ideas. "John said that was the best advice he ever had to come at the right time," Culbertson noted.

Bob & Peggy Culbertson

Bob Culbertson's favorite aspect of the scholarship is learning about the kids and their accomplishments. "Knowing that they're trying to be the first in their families to go to college, graduate and be successful is great," he said. The Culbertsons' feel good about helping children be all they can be. "These kids are not in the best of circumstances but this scholarship is giving concern and opportunity to the children in public housing who want to have a chance at success," he added.

Over the years, the Culbertsons have continued to offer sound advice to benefit the fund and its recipients while remaining active throughout the community. In his spare time, Bob likes to mentor kids at the Performance Learning Center. He spends quality time with Peggy, plays golf, makes pottery and exercises. He even attends Central Piedmont Community College taking courses in World Religion and Music Appreciation.

On behalf of the Charlotte Housing Authority Scholarship Fund, we thank the Culbertsons for their continued service to the community and for being a part of the CHASF family from the very beginning!
