Governor Pat McCrory's Weekly Newsletter

BREAKING: Unanimous Court Ruling Defends North Carolina Constitution

Governor McCrory issued a statement following the unanimous ruling today by a three-judge panel which upheld the Governor's challenge involving the use of commissions to perform regulatory responsibilities assigned to the Executive Branch.

"This historic and unanimous ruling respects and restores the separation of powers," said Governor McCrory. "I'm proud to stand up for our Constitution and the citizens of North Carolina. I'd like to thank former Governors Jim Martin and Jim Hunt for joining me in this effort to protect the principles of our state."

The administration is still reviewing all the ramifications of the court ruling, which is available here.

Governor McCrory announces Sanderson Farms, Inc. to create 1,100 new jobs with expansion into Robeson County

Governor McCrory, N.C. Commerce Secretary John E. Skvarla III and the Economic Development Partnership of N.C. announced Thursday that Sanderson Farms will construct a new state-of-the-art poultry complex in Robeson County. The new processing plant and hatchery will create approximately 1,100 new jobs during the next three years and expects to invest approximately $139 million in the complex.

Governor McCrory mourns the loss of military heroes in helicopter crash, orders state flags lowered through the weekend

Governor Pat McCrory issued the following statement Thursday after learning that the United States Coast Guard had suspended the search for seven U.S. Marines, stationed at Camp Lejeune, and four Louisiana National Guard air crewmembers aboard an Army helicopter that went down Tuesday during a night training mission in the Florida Panhandle.

"This tragedy is a somber reminder of the daily risks and dangers the men and women of our military assume in the defense of our freedom," Governor McCrory said. "Ann and I will be praying for the families of the fallen and the men and women of Camp Lejeune and the Louisiana National Guard."

On Thursday night the governor also ordered all state flags to be flown at half staff through Sunday in honor of the missing servicemen.

Governor Charts Next Steps with Teacher Advisory Committee

Governor Pat McCrory spoke with teachers from throughout the state on Tuesday for a meeting of his Teacher Advisory Committee, a committee re-established in September 2013 to address the needs of North Carolina K-12 teachers and students.

Governor McCrory spoke about his budget's commitment to teachers for the work they do every day for North Carolina's students, as well as its commitment to modernizing the state's teacher pay scale, an overall investment of over $1 billion since he took office. The governor also reaffirmed a commitment to raise the base pay for the state's teachers to $35k and is calling for $15 million for a differentiated way to pay teachers for their leadership and impact on student achievement.

In addition to new and reappointed members of the TAC, the governor was joined by James E. Ford, N.C. Teacher of the Year and the newly appointed chairman of the committee who addressed the need to work together to achieve goals that will continue to improve education systems around the state.
