In partnership with City of Charlotte, Board of County Commissioners, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools, Communities In Schools, University of North Carolina, Urban Education Collaborative, Johnson C. Smith University, NABSE Instructional Commission, Charlotte Mecklenburg Association of Educators, Friendship Social Justice Ministry, Women’s New Perspective Ministry, and Charlotte-Mecklenburg Community Relations Committee

A conference you do not want to miss! Teachers, administrators, parents, faith-based and community leaders, and all 7th to 9th grade males of color are invited to attend. Title I schools, students, and staff are also encouraged to attend! Presenters and vendors must register for conference with exhibit or proposal package.

Day 1 - Student focus: Sessions for 7th-9th grade Black males & other males of color

Sessions for black males include interactive presentations on critical leadership, etiquette, self-esteem building, positive communication among peers, and a motivational session designed to improve reading and writing skills through present-day music and poetry.

Day 2 - School Leaders, teachers and community leaders

Sessions for educators will focus on cultural issues related to public education, as well as strategies, interventions, programs, and resources to improve the quality of education for all students.

Powerful, national speakers and local leaders from the community will discuss cultural issues and best practices to improve the quality of education for all children, especially children of African descent.

Conference themes to enhance My Brother’s Keeper CLT Focus:

- Classroom Management and Discipline Strategies
- College and Career Readiness
- Culturally Relevant Teaching
- Literacy & Language Development
- STEAM: Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts & Math
- Entrepreneurship, Leadership and Resource Fair
- Impacts of Implicit Racial Bias
- Financial Literacy

Note: NC NABSE Affiliates are encouraged to replicate this conference in their local school districts in partnership with their superintendent, mayor and local government. Donations are tax deductible.
