

Seeking Applicants for Team Read Ambassadors program 2016-17

Promising Pages is seeking 20-25 of the best and brightest High School and College Students from the Charlotte area to play a pivotal, leadership role in our CMS accredited “Team Read Ambassadors” program!

Promising Pages is a Charlotte, NC based early literacy non-profit that upcycles children’s books to approximately 60,000 children who are growing up without books in the Charlotte area. We distribute books to kids wrapped as presents to create a positive relationship with reading, which correlates to increased academic potential and success in life. Interns are the hands and feet as well as the heart behind all of our summer events and projects, including reading with and distributing books to at-risk children at summer camps and non-profits, hosting group fundraisers, managing our warehouse operations, and coordinating volunteer events with various corporate entities. We are seeking self motivated, compassionate students who desire to make a difference through mentoring and intentional leadership. Rising 9th graders through college seniors may apply. The program runs from June to June but is concentrated in the summer.

- Flexible, self scheduled internship
- Gain valuable skills in communication, teamwork, social media, fundraising, leadership, and mentoring
- Learn to network with corporate sponsors and non-profit partners
- Make a powerful, lasting difference in the lives of children
- Males are encouraged to apply to serve as role models to our male patrons
- Great for college applications

“Promising Pages has been the most productive, rewarding, eye-opening experience I have ever been lucky enough to be a part of.”

–Juliana Rennie

“Being a part of Team Read has not only showed me that community support should be an essential part of my life, but also allowed me to become a better leader, giver, and team member.”

– Sarah Taylor Hartsema

“Being able to witness the joy on so many children’s faces after they have received their “magic books” is something that will stay with me forever.” – Reid Davis
