is cradle to career pipeline

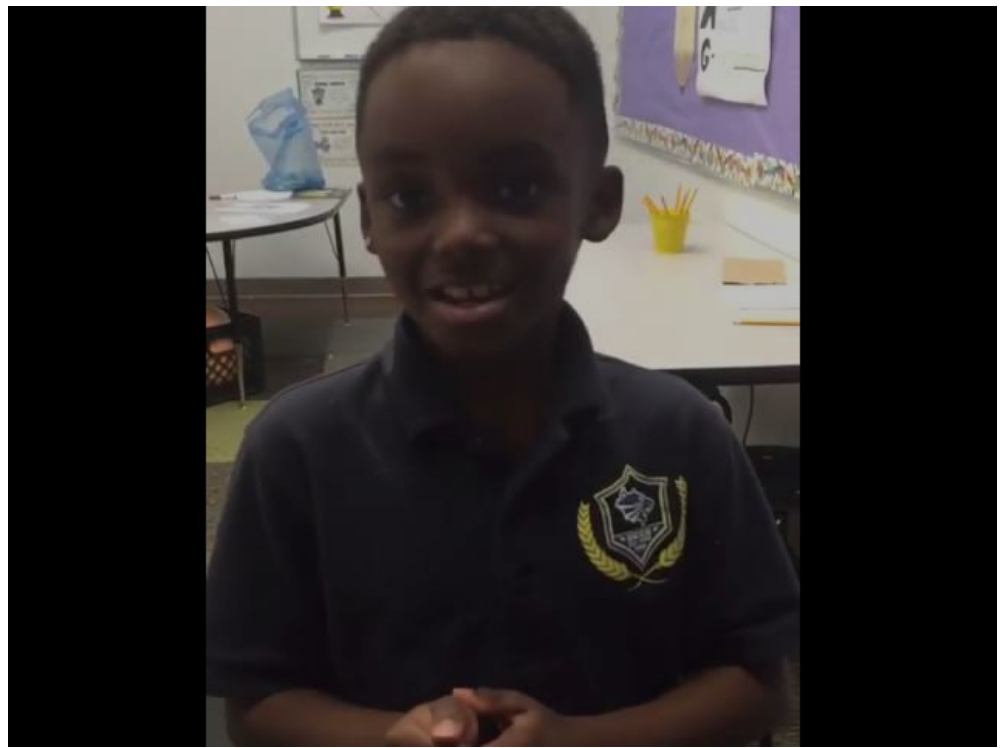

96% of Profound Gentlemen educators are returning back into the field of education

96% of Profound Gentlemen educators are returning back into the field of education, this is compared to 65% of black male educators who are not affiliated with Profound Gentlemen. This success isn't possible without educators who are committed to providing an excellent education to all students and supporters who continue to uplift PG through their time, talents, and treasures. We look forward to expanding our impact!

Listen, Our Young Men are Speaking...

Our Boys are People. We often think about our students as a statistic, delving into educational discourse in spaces where faces become data metrics. "Proficiency vs. Growth", "Charter v.s Public" all conversations that we have without the voices, perspectives, and stories of the students we set out to serve. Education is a service and our service directly benefits and impacts our Young Men and Boys. This week, Profound Gentlemen asked our Young Men and Boys to weigh in on their teachers, their learning experience, and offer advice to the wider community. Listen, our Young Men and Boys are talking...

Sponsor an Impact Cohort

Over 100 Profound Gentlemen educators are engaging in a 10-month professional and leadership development cohort to build community, share best practice around social & emotional learning standards, and creating a cradle to career pipeline of success for boys of color. Cohorts are led by our Impact Leaders who facilitate a group of no more than 20 Gentlemen. We invite you to take part in our Impact Cohorts by sponsoring our educators. Click here to learn more about Impact Cohorts
