Success Stories:

Jarron Thomas (Pathways Class of 2012)
VP, Enterprise Resiliency, Bank of America

Looking back on my time in the Pathways program I can remember not knowing what to expect going in. I was a senior looking for an internship or a job to go straight into after college and felt that if I got that it was a success. In reality, I got so much more. Being a part of this program I got exposure to top executives, presentation experience, and tough love that would mold me into being a polished young professional. The rigor over the 15-semi weeks is unmatched and there is nowhere else that I know of that you can get an opportunity to learn about entrepreneurship and corporate America over such a short period of time. I am now thriving in my corporate career, an entrepreneur, and a board member of the 100 Black Men of Charlotte and the achievements that I have accomplished to date I can tie back to the skills I obtained through pathways to Success.
