International WOMEN'S DAY

Collective action and shared responsibility for driving gender parity is what makes International Women's Day successful. Gloria Steinem, world-renowned feminist, journalist and activist once explained "The story of women's struggle for equality belongs to no single feminist nor to any one organization but to the collective efforts of all who care about human rights."

So, make International Women's Day YOUR day and do what you can to truly make a positive difference for women. #Press for Progress

A Special Invitation from W+GRA

You are invited to a special workshop

MORE ART THAN SCIENCE: A WORKSHOP ON GIRL-DRIVEN ACTIVISM

with
Dr. Lyn Mikel Brown

The workshop will be held at UNC Charlotte on April 5, 2018, the day after the 2018 Women + Girls Research Alliance Summit. Up to three individuals from your organization are invited to attend. The workshop is free but registration is required and the number of attendees will be capped. To register, please send an email to wgalliance@unc.edu by March 23. Include in your email, the names of attendees, the organization, and email addresses for all attendees.

Recent literature have affirmed the importance of youth-adult partnerships and stressed the need to reconceptualize democracy as a joint project between generations. Intergenerational partnerships are rare and wonderful things, pockets of oxygen where everyone can breathe and feel the expansive possibilities of working together. But such partnerships aren't easy to create and maintain, in part because adults find it difficult to let go of the need to protect girls, control situations, and determine the course of events. In this workshop, we walk step-by-step through girl-driven activist campaigns as we consider what it means to be supportive, reflective, intentional partners with girls.
