A child's love of reading starts at home.

Reading over the summer is incredibly important for our kids. More than half of the reading gaps of 9th graders can be explained by summer learning loss during elementary school. (Learn more here.)

The great part is that summer reading isn't about homework or tests; it can simply be about the JOY of reading!

This summer, help your children stay on track while fostering a love of reading that will serve them well throughout their lives.

Find the right books.

Try using a great summer reading list as your guide this year. And don't forget about all of the free online resources out there to access dozens of books!

Turn on the captions.

Every word your child reads counts, even if it's on the television. Turn on the subtitles while the TV is on to increase the number of words your child reads over the summer.
