

Bill - NCGA

Author: Constance Lav Johnson

Date: March 8, 2019

Title: Citizen Authors Included on Bills and Laws

State and US Elected Officials, Citizens of the United States,

Using another person's or citizen's words and written ideas/innovations as your own is considered plagiarism in all business, educational, government writings. This is a bill that includes the writing of citizens an act of plagiarism if the citizen author is not included on the bill submitted and ratified or enacted into law. Upon submitting bills for ratifying or enacting, bills submitted by citizens will include their names.

This may encourage greater citizen participation in bill writing.

Constance Lav Johnson, MA
Candidate for NC State Superintendent of Public Instruction