We need to repeal this tax on Gold Star families

Steve -

There's no better example of where Washington is broken than what some Gold Star families discovered recently when filing their taxes.

Many of these families depend on survivor benefits to get by. But in the rush to cram through the 2017 tax bill, Congress screwed up and raised taxes on benefits for the children of fallen service members.

It's hard to know what's worse: the tax increase or the fact that the bill was rammed through in such a rushed and partisan manner that this oversight even occurred.

Thanks to the leadership of some of my friends, young veterans in the new class of Democrats in Congress, bipartisan legislation is already being proposed to fix it. But they need our help to make sure it passes quickly:

Sign my petition: Tell Congress to repeal this "Kiddie Tax" and make sure our Gold Star families are taken care of.

Thanks for adding your voice. And thanks for working to bring better leadership to Washington so we can do right by so many who are being left behind by our broken partisan politics.

Yours in this fight,

Dan
