Special elections usually come down to turnout

Hey Steve -

Sam here, Dan's field director. It's my job to lead our organizing efforts — making sure we talk to and turn out every possible voter.

We've built a massive field operation with organizers and field offices in every county in the 9th District.

You see, special elections historically come down to turnout, and we're not leaving anything to chance. We're knocking doors, making phone calls, hosting community events, and doing everything we can to meet people where they are.

Running this kind of program is key to our strategy. It's how we're going to win in just a few weeks.

But this kind of program is also expensive, and we're still growing our team. With in-person early voting just three days away, we cannot wait for Election Day to turn out voters.

Can we count on you to make a \$3 donation today to help fund our get out the vote efforts? This is no easy task, but with your help, we'll flip this district.

Thanks for all you do! We're going to leave it all on the field.

Field Director
