"When I saw him, it blew my mind. I want to be like that!"

Dr. Chance Lewis recently shared a story with us about the first teacher he had who looked like him. It was his high school science teacher. Dr. Lewis is now a leading scholar on urban education and male educators of color.

Nationally, just 2% of teachers are males of color, which means that a Black or Latino boy can go through their entire K-12 education journey without having a teacher who looks like them.

Today we are participating in Giving Tuesday, and you get the chance to make an impact by supporting Profound Gentlemen. Your support will help to strengthen the pipeline of male educators of color and ensure that more boys of color have access to successful role models in school who look just like them.

We have a goal of raising \$5,000 TODAY to increase our impact by providing community building, mentorship, and leadership development opportunities to current and aspiring male educators of color. Each donation will be DOUBLED by our partner, Wells Fargo.

You can also support PG by signing up to volunteer, or sharing our social media posts. We will be posting throughout the day on social media. Please leave us a comment showing your support.

Thank you for your ongoing support.

With love and gratitude,
The Profound Gentlemen Team
