We believe in
new BEGINNINGS, because we believe in children.

“The rights of children must include the right to be themselves and to talk for themselves.”

—Nelson Mandela

This holiday season Council for Children's Rights made a renewed commitment to the voices of children. This month we dispelled myths and brought renewed focus to North Carolina's "Raise the Age" legislation. We welcomed the voice of Van Jones and his message of compassion and fairness. We — with underwriting from Bank of America — posted a 46-foot-tall banner in Uptown Charlotte declaring "Children's Rights are Human Rights."

As we begin another year of advocating for kids in distress, we need you more than ever.

This is your chance to give a child the opportunity he or she deserves — the right to be themselves, to talk for themselves... the right to a much better beginning. By supporting our attorneys, social workers, and advocates, you provide new beginnings for children during an uncertain, confusing and often scary experience with compassion and fairness.

Will you end your year by ensuring a better beginning for a child?
