Meet anguish with action

We work to help leaders change their world—and the world needs changing.

Over 1,000 people are killed by police every year in America, and Black people are three times more likely to be killed than White people. We can take steps and make reforms to combat police violence and systemic racism within law enforcement.

We're inspired by those protesting for accountability and change, even in the face of a pandemic. If you're looking for additional ways to advocate for change, we've gathered resources to learn about police violence and antiracism, as well as actions you can take to encourage reform, from organizations who have been working on these issues at the local and national level for years.

While now is a time for grief and anger, it is also a time for resolve. It is a time to meet anguish with action.
