Happy Father's Day

Steve, Happy Father's Day!

On this Father's Day, I want to express my love and gratitude for my amazing father, the late Homer Lee Wallace. He was the first African American elected Effingham County Commissioner and was a co-founder of our local NAACP in 1968. I say that I got my political genes from him.

There is no better role model in my life that instilled in me the importance of public service. He always taught me, my sisters, and my brother to do what's right, and when there's a need in your community to step up, fill that space, and make a difference. And while he's no longer with us, his wisdom and legacy are still very much at the heart of this campaign.

Especially at this moment, I feel that those lessons my father gave me are more relevant than ever, and I'm committed to taking those lessons to Washington, D.C. to create positive change for the people of North Carolina's Ninth Congressional District.

Many have had terrific fathers or father figures who they are fortunate to celebrate today and some of you, like me, can't give your dad a call today. But I hope we all can take this day to hold onto those lessons, love, and wisdom our fathers or father figures passed down to us.

Warm regards and stay safe!

Cynthia
