The John Lewis Voting Rights Act

It's time to elect fighters like Cynthia to Congress to get the job done.

Chip in now to close her \$4,768 funding gap before the mid-month deadline.

Steve,

Fifty-five years ago, the Voting Rights Act was signed into law, outlawing discriminatory voting practices. But seven years ago, the Supreme Court struck it down and left our elections wide open for voter suppression. Since then, we've seen voter ID laws, registration purging, and polling location closures run rampant across the United States.

It is time for Congress to step up and restore this law that is vital to our democracy. This bill honors the work that civil rights leaders like my dad and the late Rep. John Lewis fought so hard for. And when I get to Washington, I will be the first to co-sign that bill.

It's time to restore the Voting Rights Act and rename it in honor of John Lewis, and I'm ready to go to Congress to get the job done. But I can't make it there without your help right now. We are coming up on the midway point for this month, and we still need to raise $4,768 before the weekend is over to stay on pace with our fundraising to reach voters over the last 3 months before Election Day.

Chip in \$15 today to hit our mid month goal, and I can fight to strengthen our democracy in Congress.

The Voting Rights Act is a monumental piece of legislation that is still applicable to our elections today. In fact, based on the actions we've seen, it is desperately needed now more than ever to protect all Americans' rights. And as your Congresswoman, I'll ensure that everyone has access to the ballot box.

Let's fix this!

Cynthia
