We'll explore the results of "Digital Readiness and Innovation in Museums," a 2020 Knight report that measured museums' digital readiness just prior to the pandemic, and identified successes and challenges museums experienced as they moved towards digital.

With COVID-19 vaccinations on the rise, hope for the pandemic's end is on the horizon. As we reflect on the trauma and growth of the past year, we're also preparing for what comes next. On Episode 19 of "DISCOVERY," we'll explore the experience of creating art during a year of unprecedented challenges — and the unexpected gifts and lessons that come with it. We'll hear how choreographer Jennifer Harge and curator Sarah Bishop-Stone have reimaged their work during the past year, and how that experience will guide the future of their respective practices.
