Voter turnout: how to keep the 2020 boom from going bust

Thursday, Feb. 18, 1 p.m. ET | 10 a.m. PT

EPISODE 38: VOTER TURNOUT: HOW TO KEEP THE 2020 BOOM FROM GOING BUST
with guests: Yanna Krupnikov & Eitan Hersh

Voter turnout surged in 2020, after a run of elections where more eligible voters sat out the race than cast their votes for the winning candidate. Is this the start of a new era of civic engagement, or will we inevitably return to low turnout in the local, state and midterm elections that lie ahead? On Episode 38 of "The Future of Democracy," the political scientists who guided Knight's landmark 100 Million Project study of nonvoters will explore lessons learned from the historic 2020 election and ways to strengthen civic engagement moving forward.

Guests

Eitan Hersh, Associate Professor of Political Science and Civil Studies, Tufts University
Yanna Krupnikov, Political Science Professor, Stony Brook University

Host

Evette Alexander, Director/Learning and Impact, Knight Foundation
