#MiamiTech: capturing the moment

Thursday, Feb. 25, 1 p.m. ET | 10 a.m. PT

EPISODE 23: #MIAMITECH: CAPTURING THE MOMENT
with guests: Mayor Francis Suarez, Steve Case, Jamie Farrell

Miami's tech scene is on the rise. What started as a tight-knit group of intrepid entrepreneurs has blossomed into a burgeoning tech and startup ecosystem. Companies, investors and the country's top minds are finding their way to Miami, catalyzed by the new trends in relocation. What does this mean for the community? How can Miami ensure it uses this moment to flourish and thrive? On "Coast to Coast," we'll explore the different ways developing startup cities are shifting with the trends of current day.

Guests

Steve Case, Co-Founder, America Online; Chairman and CEO, Revolution
Jamie Farrell, Co-Founder & COO, Engageli
Francis Suarez, Mayor, City of Miami

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION
Campus free speech and technology

Thursday, Feb. 25, 12 p.m. ET | 9 a.m. PT

Social media and digital communications, already a central channel for speech within campus communities, have become the primary means through which students and faculty seek information, debate issues, and organize for action during the COVID-19 pandemic. Students, particularly those who are BIPOC or LGBTQ, are increasingly the target of online bullying and misinformation campaigns — but these same students are also embracing technology to advance social justice on an unprecedented scale. We'll explore how colleges and universities can safeguard students' free speech in digital forums while also combatting deception and extreme polarization, encouraging inclusion and democratic deliberation.
