Making the Connection

It's likely fair to say that the Little Sugar Creek Greenway is the showpiece of Mecklenburg County's greenway system. The linear park is wildly popular with walkers, runners, cyclists, and skaters, and provides a unique opportunity to see wildlife and people active just a stone's throw from uptown. When complete, it will stitch nearly 20 miles between Cordelia Park and the South Carolina state line. New sections opening or under construction right now continue to bring that vision closer to reality. Learn more about the most recent projects along Charlotte's signature greenway: <https://partnersforparks.org/greenway-polk/>

Celebrating Charlotte's West Side

Partners for Parks joined the party on Charlotte's historic west side to show its support for the growing recreation scene, and as part of its commitment to equity and access for all to local parks. Neighbors had plenty to celebrate and do during the Summerstock Charlotte event, including the renovated basketball court funded through grants from Lowe's Home Improvement and the Charlotte Hornets, and facilitated by Partners for Parks. Parks "On a Roll"

Last month we told you about Meck Rec & Roll, an all-new mobile initiative from Mecklenburg County Park and Recreation to take a bit of the park programming experience on the road and into the neighborhoods— quite literally! With a few miles behind the wheel, how'd it go? We checked in with Park and Rec to find out. Click here to read the rest of this one, and to learn when the Meck Rec & Roll van will be headed to a neighborhood near you! <https://partnersforparks.org/meck-rec-roll-update/>

Ready for Some Football?

We're a few months from watching the college and pro players do their thing on the field, but Charlotte-area kids are sharpening their football skills and having a blast with DJ Moore and friends at this one-of-a-kind summer camp. Click here to learn more about Partners for Parks' role in getting some local kids to camp— and some great pictures from the action on the field! <https://partnersforparks.org/dj-moore-camp/>
