Steve,

Last week, Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer announced his retirement, creating a key vacancy on the 6-3 conservative majority bench.

During President Biden's campaign, he promised to nominate the first Black woman to the Supreme Court in keeping with the greatest traditions of the presidency's Supreme Court nominations.

This is a monumental moment for Democrats, who now control the Senate majority by just one vote. Mitch McConnell had no problem blocking President Obama's appointee the first chance he got and rammed Trump's justices through the confirmation process, changing the filibuster rules and even filling a vacancy during the 2020 election to do so. We must act urgently.

With Roe v. Wade and voting rights under attack by the GOP, it's crucial President Biden fulfills his campaign promise of nominating the first Black woman to the Court who will also defend reproductive rights, voting rights, workers' rights, health care access, and so much more.

Steve, we can't afford to stall now that this seat has opened up with the midterm elections just nine months away.

Sign our petition calling on President Biden to fulfill his campaign promise of appointing the first Black woman to the Supreme Court and urging Senate Democrats to confirm his appointee swiftly and promptly.
