New State House Map

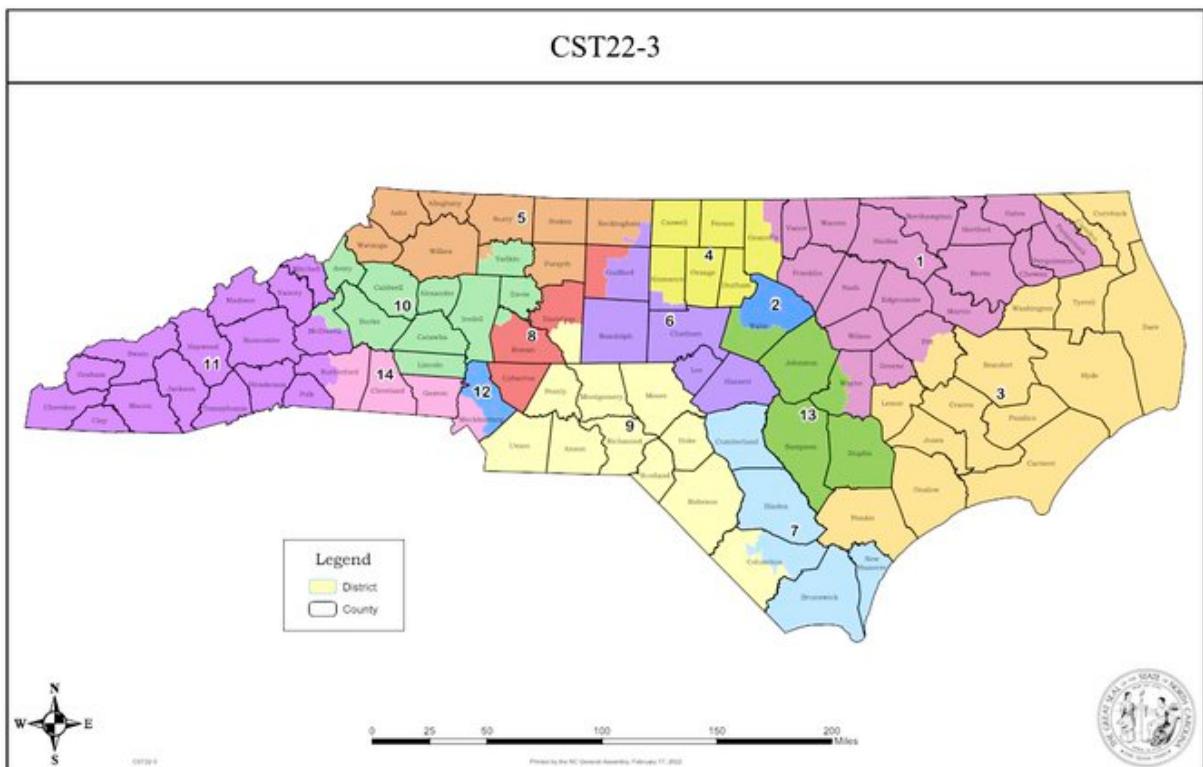

New State Senate Map

New Congressional Map

I was back in Raleigh this week to consider and vote on new maps for State House, State Senate and US Congress, as ordered by the NC Supreme Court after finding that the original maps were unconstitutional. I voted against the maps in November and was hopeful that, given this second chance, we could work on a bipartisan basis to pass constitutionally-compliant maps. Minority Leader Senator Dan Blue held a press conference last Monday, calling for a collaborative approach. Here are links to the detailed versions of the NC Senate, NC House and Congressional maps passed yesterday.

State Senate Map

Unfortunately, Republicans presented a map that they drew in private and then refused to accept any Democratic amendments to make it fair. As enacted, the map eliminates one of our 22 Democratic members (who is a long-serving African-American Senator and former judge) and puts many of our members in more difficult districts, even those in Democratic counties like Wake. Their map protects President Pro Tem Phil Berger with a very favorable district, even though the fair way to draw his cluster would produce three Democratic-leaning districts. Their map retains most of the problems the Court rejected, including extensive packing of Democratic voters. Thus, we believe the Senate map does not comply with the court order and is not constitutional.

On the positive side, the remedial map fixed the double-bunk that had impacted me and puts me back in a Mecklenburg district. So it is better for me personally. But that's not enough. I have always believed that the need for fair maps statewide is more important than my personal situation. So, I voted no on the map, along with all of my Democratic colleagues. The map passed 26-19 in the Senate and 67-52 in the House.

You can read more about the Democratic amendments and how they were all rejected without consideration here.

State House Map

House Democrats and Republicans worked collaboratively to address the partisan gerrymanders in the original State House map to create a final compromise map, with 6 of the 7 Democratic amendments adopted. I voted yes on this bipartisan map. It passed the House 115-5 and the Senate 41-3.

Congressional Map

Similar to the process with the State Senate Maps, Republican leadership refused to work collaboratively with Democrats on the Congressional map, maintaining gerrymanders and splitting communities of interest. No Democratic amendments in the Senate or the House were accepted. While this map is an improvement from the original (notably, Mecklenburg County is now only split once instead of twice), I voted no because I do not believe it reflects the voters of the state. It passed the Senate 26-19 and the House 66-53. You can read more about the new Congressional map here.

Next Steps

Today is the deadline for the NCGA and the parties to the lawsuit to submit proposed maps to the Court. The court will review all the options, with the help of three appointed Special Masters. One of the special masters is Tom Ross, former President of Davidson College. It is expected that the Court will accept the House map, since it was a compromise map. I am hopeful that the court, in its power, will provide Senate and Congressional maps that respect voters' constitutional rights. The Court's decision is expected by noon on February 23, 2022. We won't know until then whether the candidate filing period will reopen next week as planned, or whether the court will need more time to determine the maps. You can read more about the maps, how they impact Mecklenburg County, and my statement to the Charlotte Observer at this link.

First Joint Legislative Committee Meeting on Medicaid Expansion

Medicaid Expansion is an important policy step that North Carolina should take to provide more people access to affordable healthcare. I was proud to be a co-sponsor of Senate Bill 402, Close the Medicaid Coverage Gap, during the long session. This week the newly-formed Joint Legislative Committee on Access to Healthcare and Medicaid Expansion convened for first time. This committee is charged with Medicaid-related oversight, including determining whether NC should finally join the 39 states (including DC) that have expanded Medicaid. The members include those who are opposed and those who are in favor.

The committee met for the first time earlier today. They discussed the impacts of federal "surprise billing" laws on states, rural hospital closures, and shortages in the nursing profession. You can read more about the meeting here. I am not a member of this committee, but I will be following it closely because I believe this is an important issue for North Carolinians.

Interview with Queen City News about Colonial Pipeline Clean-Up Efforts

I spoke to Queen City News last week about the Colonial Pipeline gasoline clean-up in Huntersville. I receive regular updates from Colonial Pipeline and DEQ, and share that information on social media and with residents directly impacted by the spill regularly -- please contact me if you would like to be added to that

Controversial Bill Banning Mask Mandates in Schools Passes House and Senate

On Thursday, the House and Senate debated and voted on Senate Bill 173, Free the Smiles Act, which would give parents sole authority on whether their child must wear a mask at school, instead of school officials or public health professionals. I spoke on the floor against this bill. Here is what I said:

"COVID rates are finally on the decline and we are grateful for this reprieve. But we are still in a pandemic. In Mecklenburg County, the community transmission rate is still in the red/high range. In the past 2 weeks, 38 people died from COVID in Mecklenburg county. Even more relevant to this bill, in the same time frame, 25% of new COVID cases were among children less than 18 years old. Kids are getting COVID and they are spreading it too. We could easily see a new surge even worse than Omicron.

The Governor has already changed the DHHS Strong Schools NC Public Health Toolkit guidance to make masks optional, but that's not enough for the supporters of this bill. This bill says that you hope for the best, even though we are in a pandemic, even as you eliminate one of the few tools we have to keep schools open and people safe.

This bill tells schools across the state that they cannot take measures to keep students and educators safe and keep schools open

- No matter how bad the numbers get
- No matter how full the hospitals get
- No matter how many teachers get sick or die
- No matter how many children do the same
- No matter how many parents want the safety of a masked environment for their children

There is no safety switch here. This bill is irresponsible. We should allow our schools to make these important decisions. We should not allow individual parent preferences to supersede public health needs and override everyone else's rights."

The bill passed the Senate 28-17 and the House 76-42. The Governor has expressed concerns about the bill and we expect a veto. Regardless of what happens with SB173, the Charlotte-Mecklenburg School Board will decide next week whether to lift the mask mandate for students and/or staff.

Charlotte League of Women Voters Lunch & Learn Event

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg League of Women Voters hosted environmental reporter Lisa Sorg for an online discussion and I was happy to participate. She shared information gleaned from her reporting about many important topics.

She updated us about the Colonial gasoline spill in Huntersville and mentioned that we still don't know where the PFAS at the site came from. She's following that clean up closely. She reported that Colonial has many other spill sites (none as large as this one) and that clean up at those sites has never been complete and often results in permanent deed restrictions on the land.

She described how hog farms in NC contain and dispose of their waste with the lagoons and sprayfields method and compared that to the alternative of biogas digesters, which are an improvement in some respects but come with drawbacks too.

She plans to dig deep on the issue of safety requirements at plants prone to explosions like the Weaver Fertilizer site in Winston-Salem. That plant was grandfathered into lax safety conditions, which may need updating. You can read more about the incident here.

She also provided us with a way to track lead in drinking water via a website called Drinking Water Watch.

If you'd like more information about any of this, let me know and I can send details.

Treatment Advancements for Ocular Melanoma

On February 11, I tuned in to hear about an exciting advancement in the treatment of ocular melanoma, a disease we see too much of in our area.

Dr. Orloff explained that the Kimmtrak drug drags immune cells over to the cancer like a magnet to fight uveal melanoma (eye cancer).

The Kimmtrak study started in 2013 and is the first drug to get FDA approval for most Uveal Melanoma patients, including those with metastatic UM. Certain HLA types are not eligible.

The overall survival rate improved with treatment, even though the tumors do not necessarily shrink much. It gets results even when the cancer has spread to the liver.

I know that at least one local patient is under the care of Dr. Orloff and is using Kimmtrak to treat her OM and I join others in hoping that it works for her.

You can see the recorded video presentation and other news about Uveal Melanoma here. We still do not know what is causing so many cases of Ocular Melanoma here, which is why we need to pass my bill, Senate Bill 137, Study and Abate Ocular Melanoma/Funds.

NC Begins Developing Holocaust Curriculum Per New State Law

Including the Holocaust in public school curriculum was one of my policy priorities when I joined the NC Senate. I worry about Americans who don't know about the tragic failure of humanity or, even worse, deny it. I am grateful that my teachers (and my teacher-Mom) made sure I knew the truth.

I am pleased that we found consensus last year in the NCGA to require the Holocaust be included in public school curriculum and that we have experienced teachers like the one interviewed in this article creating curriculum to engage students with the topic. We must know history in order to learn from it.

Changes to Rules Regarding Teacher Personal Days

North Carolina public teachers may no longer have to provide a reason for taking personal leave after the NC Board of Education altered the paid leave policy. Under a law passed last year, teachers were relieved of having to pay the cost of a substitute teacher ($98) when they took a personal day but only if they provided an acceptable reason for taking the day off. This policy was considered to be an invasion of teachers' privacy, so the policy was changed earlier this month to give local school districts the authority to waive the need to provide a reason. You can read more about the policy change and CMS's plans here.
