BCDI Charlotte, UNCC students team up to offer tutoring

Our partners at the Black Child Development Institute-Charlotte are working with a group of UNC Charlotte students to provide literacy tutoring to CMS elementary students using the A2i After School platform introduced by Read Charlotte.

The BCDI-Charlotte team met with the students this month to discuss how to help Windsor Park Elementary School students meet their literacy goals through individualized tutoring. The tutoring is powered by the A2i platform by Learning Ovations, which Read Charlotte brought to Mecklenburg County. We've tracked the research and development of the A2i platform since 2017 and, in 2020, began work to make it available for use in Charlotte-Mecklenburg.

Read Charlotte's Executive Director chosen as Pahara Fellow

Read Charlotte Executive Director Munro Richardson was selected to be a member of the newest class of the Pahara Fellowship, a one-year program that supports innovative leaders who are reimagining public education.

"It's an honor to be selected as a Pahara Fellow," Richardson said. "I'm looking forward to learning from and with the incredible education leaders in my cohort. I look forward to bringing what I learn from the Pahara experience back to Charlotte-Mecklenburg."

The latest class of Fellows includes 23 leaders in the education space. Click here to learn more about them and the program!

Want to make an impact in our community? Read Charlotte is hiring!

We're looking for two Literacy Facilitators to help us support community partners in implementing evidence-based literacy programs and practices. The facilitators will work with organizations of various types and sizes on training, coaching, and implementation, with the goal of transforming early literacy outcomes.
