A Note from Quarantine

Hello, friends.

I'm on day six of quarantine after finding out I have COVID-19 earlier this week. It's been incredibly frustrating being stuck at home missing candidate forums, the start of early voting, and other events throughout the community. We are less than three weeks from Election Day, and this couldn't have come at a worse time, but the #VoteLarken team is out there working exhaustively to cover for me and make sure our game plan is executed while I'm stuck on the sideline. Over the last week we've received endorsements from The Charlotte Observer, The Charlotte Post, several workers' union groups, several LGBTQ advocacy organizations, and many prominent community leaders. We are now spending the campaign dollars we've raised making sure we get the word out about those endorsements and our vision for Charlotte. We're reaching people via direct mail, digital targeted ads, radio, and more, but these strategies aren't cheap. We want to leave it all on the field, and make sure on Election Day we've done everything possible to advance to July's general election and continue on the City Council in a third term.

Can you chip in $5, $10, or $25 dollars today to help us make our final push to May 17th? Every dollar helps and every vote counts, so even if you're not in a position to make a small donation to our campaign today, please make sure to get out and early vote between now and Election Day. Thank you for all of your support!
