Steve —

Before I ask you to split a contribution to my campaign for U.S. Senate in Wisconsin and Dirt Road PAC, let me tell you why your support means so much at this moment.

Here's the truth:

Ron Johnson has been aggressively fundraising since he announced his re-election campaign at the start of this year. He has a well-established group of special-interest donors and corporate PACs who are giving the maximum allowed amount to support him.

On this campaign, we are doing things differently.

The way that this campaign is funded – and the way that we are going to beat Ron Johnson – is from the tens of thousands of people who have given nearly 200,000 contributions. That's remarkable, and I'm very proud of how we're building this campaign together.

While we have come very far in this race, our toughest days are still ahead. And we cannot underestimate what the Republican Party will throw our way in an effort to hold this seat. They've already booked tens of millions of dollars in advertising in Wisconsin, and that is only the beginning.

So we need to be ready, which means that today is one of those days when I need to ask you to chip in. How about it, Steve?

Please split a \$10 contribution to my campaign for U.S. Senate in Wisconsin and Dirt Road PAC, and together we are going to defeat Ron Johnson.
