A Letter from Deb Hanna- Council's New Board President

I am so honored this year to serve as the new President of the Board of Directors of the Council for Children's Rights and to work with such dedicated board members.

Supporting this critically important work is a family commitment for us. For over 30 years, George and I have served as volunteers and contributed financial support for the Council and its predecessor organizations because we believe so strongly in its mission.

We have seen CFCR's small team of passionate attorneys, social workers, and support associates serve thousands of Charlotte's most vulnerable children. I am extremely proud of the work they have accomplished to address the individualized needs of each child. And I am equally as proud of their efforts to advocate for reform in the systems that serve our children to address barriers and gaps that cause inequality in our community.

We do this work not only because it is the right thing to do, but because there is no other agency that focuses exclusively on ensuring that the legal rights of vulnerable children are protected in the courtroom and in schools, and advocating change in the systems that create challenges to their well-being.

Charlotte's children are Charlotte's future and if we invest in them now, I know they will be able to accomplish great things for themselves, our community, and beyond.

Sincerely,

Deb Hanna
