Joy is contagious! When you support and protect children, you experience a surge of endorphins that only comes from an act of generosity and hope. Spread some joy this year and protect our community's children by supporting the Council for Children's Rights.

This is your chance to give a child the opportunity they deserve – during a time when opportunities can be hard to find. By joining our attorneys, social workers, and advocates, you provide lifelines to children during an uncertain, confusing, and often scary experience with compassion, fairness, and hope.

Will you end your year by supporting the potential of all children?

If you've already given, thank you! Share the joy and pass it on by forwarding this email to your friends and family.
