Kids are growing up in a world that is almost unrecognizable from what I knew. Back in my tween years, my favorite things to do were jumping rope outside, riding my bike, reading Word Up! magazine..READ MORE "HERE"

Trinity Episcopal School Principal
Nurtures Students' Goals and Passions

Children often dream of a myriad of occupations before finding the passion that eventually informs their career choice. That wasn't the case for Imana Sherrill, the new head of school at Trinity Episcopal School (TES). Even as a young child, Sherrill wanted to be an educator. "I think I must have found my love for teaching when I was a child," Sherrill recalled. "I remember 'playing school' and always wanting to teach and be supportive of my friends. There was...

The Arts Empowerment Project

Offers Hope and Opportunity to Area Youth

The arts teach more than just how to glue pieces of construction paper together or how to color between the lines. Research shows that exposure to the arts can help young people develop many positive skills, such as persistence, collaboration, creative thinking, problem solving and motivation, that are valued by leaders and employers.
