Subject: ICYMI: USDA Healthy Food Financing Initiative Partnerships Program

Hello,

The USDA Healthy Food Financing Initiative is thrilled to launch the Local and Regional Healthy Food Financing Partnerships Program, which will offer funding to support local capacity and capital to establish and grow local, regional, or state food financing programs, improving access to fresh, healthy foods.

The HFFI Partnerships Program will offer grants to support partnerships between organizations from different sectors that will work together at the local, state, or regional level to improve access to fresh, healthy, affordable food by providing financial and technical assistance to eligible projects.

This new program will expand the impact of the HFFI program nationally and bring in new partners to address the complexity of food access in communities across America. Through support of local and regional Partnerships, this program will build capacity for local groups serving the needs of their communities and deepen the reach of HFFI into underserved communities.

To learn more about who is eligible for the HFFI Partnerships Program and how to apply, you can view the program factsheet here.

You can also learn more about the HFFI program here.

The application closes on November 3rd at 11:59pm ET.
