Celebrate Black Philanthropy Month by Empowering Our Community!

As we honor Black Philanthropy Month this August, we reflect on the power of collective giving and its profound impact on our communities. At the Urban League of Central Carolinas, we're committed to equipping African Americans and underserved communities in Charlotte with the tools they need to achieve social and economic equality.

Our workforce trades program is one of the many ways we're making a difference. It takes just $4,129 to support a student through this transformative program, where they gain the skills needed to secure stable, well-paying jobs. Each student we train is a step toward a stronger, more resilient community.

But we can't do it alone. In the spirit of Black Philanthropy Month, we invite you to join us in increasing our impact. Your support can make a world of difference. Together, we can continue to empower lives, build strong communities, and create lasting change.

Donate today to support the movement and help us uplift more lives in our community.

Thank you for being a part of our mission.

Warm regards,

Urban League of Central Carolinas
