Natasha MARCUS

NC Commissioner of Insurance

Hi Steve,

Today's the first day of early voting in North Carolina, and while we step up to make our voices heard, Insurance Commissioner Mike Causey is nowhere to be seen — hiding behind political games instead of protecting North Carolinians.

Right now, as North Carolinians head to the polls, Commissioner Causey is holding a politically-timed rate hike hearing. That's right! After eight years of ignoring public input, he's finally holding his first public hearing on a rate hike—but it's all just for show. Causey won't even preside over the hearing himself, instead leaving it to a staffer. It's a desperate stunt to make it seem like he's being transparent right before Election Day, but we know better.

I held a press conference right in front of Mike Causey's office to call him out directly. Rate hikes, secret deals, and political cronies—that's what Causey's leadership has brought us, and it's time to end it. North Carolina families deserve better.

Early voting starts today and runs through November 2nd, and Election Day is November 5th. Don't wait. Lines will be long on Election Day, so vote early and make your voice heard. Find your polling place at iwillvote.com/nc and let's show Causey that his time is up.

We deserve an Insurance Commissioner who will actually show up and fight for North Carolinians—not one who hides behind closed doors and political theater. I'm fighting for an insurance system that puts people first—no more closed-door deals, no more unchecked rate hikes. Together, we can defeat "Rate Hike Mike" and bring accountability back to the Department of Insurance.

Our campaign is up on TV now, but we need your support to keep our ads running and make sure every voter knows the truth about Mike Causey. Please chip in today to keep our campaign strong and help us win. Early voting is our chance to make a difference, and with your support, we can bring real change to North Carolina.

We suspended all campaign outreach there for several weeks, focusing on getting folks the help they need as quickly as possible.
