We selected those words from an excerpt of President Obama's speech honoring the 50th anniversary of the Selma to Montgomery marches. The President has described this speech as one of his most meaningful because it best captures the need for each generation to take up the baton and advance the work of those who came before.

That idea is central to the mission of The Obama Foundation, where we seek to inspire, empower, and connect the next generation of global leaders.

The words on the exterior serve not just as an homage to the past, but as a call to action for today. We hope that visitors to the Obama Presidential Center leave feeling inspired to continue the work of those who came before us.

And that is the core vision of The Obama Foundation. Every one of us has the amazing power to improve our communities for ourselves, our loved ones, and for generations to come. That's why The Obama Foundation works to empower our world's future leaders through scholarships, training, and networking.

That is the future you will help make a reality by donating of \$25 or more by tonight's deadline. Your generous support for our mission will be remembered.

We hope you will join us in carrying the legacy on for future generations.

Sincerely,
