Meet the new class of Obama Foundation Leaders! Representing 70 nations and territories, the 205 changemakers in our Africa, Asia-Pacific, Europe, and United States cohorts share a common drive to confront our world's toughest challenges.

Over the next year, while taking part in the Foundation's signature Hope to Action curriculum, Leaders will learn from new perspectives and harness their collective power to achieve even more than they ever could on their own.

As President Obama put it, "Each year, I am struck by the passion, creativity, and determination these young people bring to the table. My hope is that through this program, they'll build lasting connections, learn from one another, and continue driving the kind of change that shapes a more just, sustainable, and hopeful future."

Get to know the newest Leaders and stay tuned for more in-depth profiles highlighting their work both during their Leaders program and in the future as they become a part of the Obama Leadership Network.

Empower the next generation of changemakers.
