NAACP is putting the tech industry on alert, and issuing a call to action for communities to demand more accountability from companies building new data centers.

We're starting with the world's richest man, Elon Musk.

Here's what's happening: Elon Musk quickly threw up a massive data center in Boxtown, Tennessee, a Black community. Musk bypassed all permitting and environmental reviews. Now Musk is looking to build one in Mississippi!

As you read this, the Boxtown data center is pumping the air full of toxic chemicals and cancer-causing agents.

No community should be forced to sacrifice clean air, clean water, and homes safe to live in so that billionaires can build energy-hungry facilities. We demand that public health protections have independent monitoring, healthcare access for workers and community residents, and take actions to prevent harm.

The NAACP will not stay quiet while the health of Black communities are under attack.

TAKE IMMEDIATE ACTION: 10,000 SIGNATURES ARE NEEDED TO JOIN NAACP IN ADVOCATING FOR OUR COMMUNITIES AND HALT DIRTY DATA CENTERS!
