The City of Charlotte has launched the Skilled to Build initiative to prepare small businesses and talent for the opportunities emerging from the city's transportation and mobility investments.

In November 2025, Mecklenburg County voters approved a 1-cent countywide sales tax to fund transit and transportation improvements included in the city's Mobility+ initiative.

But Mobility+ goes beyond infrastructure – it's about building opportunities.

The City's Strategic Mobility Plan is designed to provide reliable, integrated transportation that connects people to jobs, housing, schools and services.
